THE CAUTIOUS CONSERVATIVE NOTE -- KISSINGER

Martin Kalb -- CBS - radio from Paris

The lightening swing through Western Europe continues. Kissinger has already conferred with the NATO Council in Brussels, a preliminary talk with the West Germans in Duesseldorf, dinner in Paris last night with the French FM, breakfast with the French President and then on to Rome for similar exchanges with Italian leaders. Tomorrow morning Kissinger meets with Pope Paul, perhaps to discuss the future status of Jerusalem in any ME settlement. Throughout the Secretary has been giving America's West European allies a quick fill-in on the Moscow summit stressing that the process of detente and easing of EAST-West relations has been maintained despite the political liability of Watergate and the negotiating complexity of the strategic arms limitations talks or SALT. Kissinger strikes a cautious, conservative note on this subject believing it will be quite a few years and many new weapons later before any comprehensive arms agreement is completed.

NO COMMENT FROM KISSINGER ON ELLSBERG CASE

Jack Curtis -- CBS - radio - Paris

..... In a related development State Department Spokesman Robert Anderson told newsmen today in Paris that Secretary Kissinger will make no further comment on the office break-in of Ellsberg's psychiatrist until Kissinger testifies before the Senate FRC.

SENIOR AMERICAN OFFICIAL -- OR JULY 4 AT THE PENTAGON

Bob Schieffer -- CBS - radio -- 1st Line Report

Guess who is in Germany to take a few days off and watch the soccer matches? Why Senior American Official, that is who. You remember him of course, he is the anonymous fellow who often shows up in various parts of the world where Henry Kissinger happens to be visiting. No one knows his name but we do know several things for sure. He apparently has wide contacts throughout the American press establishment because when he calls a news conference all of the important reporters show up, and one thing is absolutely certain, Senior American Official knows a lot about U.S. foreign policy. It comes as no surprise then that Senior American Official is in Germany this week since Kissinger is also there. Kissinger isn't talking while he is in Germany he is taking a few days rest, but Senior American Official is talking. In fact Senior had a long conversation yesterday with Murray Marder of the Washington Post.

Official gave an assessment of the Moscow summit developments just a few hours after Kissinger and his party flew into Dusseldorf from Moscow. In his Dusseldorf interview Senior American Official told Marder and we quote " it is no mean accomplishment to hold the course of detente under the conditions that exist in the U.S. " What Senior was talking about of course was President Nixon and he was also talking about the Watergate scandal, the threat of impeachment and the effect of all that on the negotiations. As Marder wrote it, this threat was inextricably implied in the negotiating strategy on both sides although both would deny it. No American President has ever engaged in high stakes international diplomacy under such a ~~cloud~~. It was an interview and just another indication of how far he has come since he joined the Administration, Senior American Official we mean. In the early days Senior American Official's main responsibility was to brief newsmen on Presidential foreign policy speeches. Henry Kissinger handled that later on, but in the early days White House image makers were ashamed of Kissinger's German accent, they thought it would remind everyone of Dr. Strangelove. So the job of briefing the press on foreign policy fell to Senior American Official. Those days he usually went by the name Senior White House Official, it was not until Kissinger came out of the closet that Senior added the word American to his title. As Kissinger began to travel it was only natural that Senior American Official would go along, since he had acquired so many friends in the Press during his White House briefing job. Since then his life has been a veritable whirl wind, Vietnam, Paris, Peking, Moscow the MB, Moscow again and now Dusseldorf. It has been an exciting time for Senior American Official and some say he has become quite a swinger in between press briefings. He has made a friend or two along the way -- guys like 'not for attribution' and 'deep background'; but it hasn't been easy and Senior has collected a few enemies too, 'the formidable Pentagon source' for one; 'Pentagon source' never did like Senior. They fell out early on when Senior tried to blame a lot of the Vietnam dirty stuff on then Secretary of Defense Laird. Lately 'Pentagon source' has been furious because Kissinger and Senior Official have joined 'not for attribution' in inferring that the military's lack of restraint had something to do with the failure to get an arms agreement in Moscow. In view of all this tension we do not blame Senior American Official for taking a few days rest in Germany, all of these fellows could use a vacation hopefully they will be able to find a nice quiet spot where no one will recognize them and where they can get some real relaxation.

~~of impeachment and the effect of all that on the negotiations.~~

NOTE --- Barbara Walters continued her interview of Colson on NBC - TV - Today Show. The entire conversation concerned CIA involvement in the Watergate Break-in with Colson stating that his views were corroborated by the Baker Report - no mention of Kissinger
